Symbolism Hidden in Plain Sight

The amazing poster (left) was issued by the European Union in 1992. Later withdrawn, and now unavailable in its original form, the poster bearing the logo "EUROPE: MANY TONGUES, ONE VOICE" seems to have been a case of over enthusiasm on the part of a Euro apparatchik.

The image is clearly of the Tower of Babel being rebuilt (Note the crane top right). Indeed it is based on the famous painting by Brueghel and the actual European Parliament building in Strasbourg (For images of both see page 6) all of which share the 'unfinished' look.

Unsurprising in that Babylon originated as the city of Babel which descended into degeneracy and idolatory. The lesson of the rise and fall of Babylon told in Genesis chapter eleven does not seem to have deterred the effort of the latter day Nimrods and their fiendish slaves to try and build a tower to reach the heavens.

"They have given us into the hand of new unhappy lords,
Lord without anger and honour, who dare not carry their swords.
They fight by shuffling papers, they have bright dead alien eyes;
They look at our labour and laughter as a tired man looks at flies.
And the load of their loveless pity is worse than the ancient wrongs..."

Editorial

Out! Out! Out!

The Referendum our masters have so graciously granted us is coming up on the 23 June. The stance of Candour has been constant and steady since our founding in 1953. Of course we are as opposed to the European Union as we were to the Common Market con and the lies that were told before and have been told ever since via the European Economic Community. Some, mistakenly, see that as an anti-European attitude.

Not so. The Europe we have always aimed for is a Europe of 100 Flags. Proud, independent, racially homogeneous nations.

That most of our people have failed to grasp the basics of political struggle is obvious. Otherwise we would not be staring racial extinction in the face.

In 1967 the Red German student movement leader Rudi Dutschke reformulated Antonio Gramsci's theory of cultural hegemony with the phrase The Long March Through the Institutions. In fact it has been a very speedy march through the institutions. More like a sprint on steroids.

The ground work having been laid by generations of fifth columnists maggotted into the institutions, such as the BBC, from top to bottom. All completely rotted to the core.

Our people have been and continue to be lambs to the slaughter. Notice how little fight our people are showing. I have seen more life in a tramps vest than in the so called Brexit or Leave Europe Campaign or whatever it is called this week.

Look at the characters of the Leave campaign. Nigel Farage, the Arfur Daly of UKIP, and Boris Johnson who apparently waited until the last moment to see which way the wind was blowing. (Or maybe which direction he was ordered to take). Cameron and Johnson are both old Etonians, Oxford University and members of the Bullingdon Club. Opponents in the Referendum? Pull the other one it has bells on it.

If the result of the referendum is to leave be assured that there will be another referendum and if need be another after that until the 'correct' result is arrived at.

Ask the countries that have voted NO in the past how it works. The Irish were taught that lesson the hard way.

Still let us VOTE NO and shame the devil!

Unbreathed be his name, and unhonor'd his stone;

A Look at the European Union Mindset

On reading the text of the talk below and more especially on viewing the video of the speech on youtube one is struck by the evangelical zealotry of the speaker. This is a constant feature with these characters. They are on a MISSION!

European Commission.
FIRST VICE-PRESIDENT (2014 - 2019)
Frans Timmermans

Responsibilities include: Better Regulation, Interinstitutional Relations, the Rule of Law and the Charter of Fundamental Rights.
The following is the text of his introductory speech in Brussels 1 October 2015 at the First Annual Colloquium on Fundamental Rights.

Video available at:
ec.europa.eu/justice/events/colloquium-fundamental-rights-2015/index_en.htm

"Thank you very much. I can't begin to tell you how glad I am that you are all here. This for me is already at the beginning a highlight in my career as a member of the European Commission. It is something that I have worked for for a year, and now that you are all here, I hope we can have a fruitful couple of days. I am very honoured by your presence at the first annual Colloquium on Fundamental Rights, and I strongly believe that we chose a topic that is of, I would almost say, existential importance to the future of Europe. This Colloquium is the first but it is not a one off. Fundamental rights is a responsibility I attach the highest importance to within my portfolio. I announced the Colloquium in the European Parliament a year ago, and I want to bring together once a year and around the same table, politicians, practitioners, institutions, NGOs, to build together a clear understanding of the situation of fundamental rights in Europe today. Taking time to listen, to confront our experiences, is equally vital to every one of us in helping us deal with the difficult issues we all grapple with separately. And I think it is hugely symbolic that we have decided to devote this first Colloquium to antisemitism and anti-Muslim hatred. I feel very strongly about both issues. We decided on this theme at the beginning of the year against the backdrop of devastating terrorist attacks, the ghastly rise of antisemitism it exemplified, the fear of a backlash it released, the general malaise in our society it revealed but also the wave of civic mobilisation that it sparked across Europe.

It was a crucial topic then and today, as hundreds of thousands in need of refuge are arriving on our shores and the capacity of our society for tolerance and inclusion is put to the test like never before. There couldn't be a more burning issue. Europe is going through a period of crisis and turmoil, which is challenging the very values on which it was built. It is challenging the very fabric of European society and therefore the very fabric of European cooperation. The rise of antisemitism, the rise of Islamophobia, each in their own way are symptoms.

I know very well, ladies and gentlemen, that our decision to address both issues in the context of this Colloquium was a controversial one. Each is complex. Each is a unique phenomenon with its own roots, its own forms, its own impact. And each, yes, would deserve a Colloquium in its own right. We are not lumping them together. I know perfectly well that they are different phenomena with different histories, with different backgrounds, with different manifestations, with different levels of violence seen, etc etc. I know that very well. But what these phenomena do have in common is that they affect communities which are, each in their own way, seen as different from the majority, and which therefore risk being exposed and targeted when scapegoats are sought.

But through their extreme nature and the difficult discussions they trigger, antisemitism and anti-Muslim hatred are emblematic of other forms of hatred.

At the bottom of all forms of hatred, is the fact that you are targeted purely for who you are. No matter what you do, or what you say, you are targeted for who you are, something you can do nothing about. It's just who you are. Whether it's being scared of wearing your headscarf in public places, or covering your kippa with a baseball cap. Not being able to go about your daily business without a knot in your stomach, knowing the casual insults, the jokes, the abuse won't go away. The fear that your child's school, your local supermarket might be targeted by people who hate you for who you are.

About a year ago I started losing sleep over the headlines about Aliya: Europeans leaving Europe, today's Europe, because they no longer see, as Jews, a future for themselves here. Without our Jewish community, Europe would cease to exist. Europe would simply cease to exist.

When you know about European history, you know that the darker, uglier forces in our societies always turn first against minorities. Always turn first against Jews.

And when you know anything about European history, you know that antisemitism is a triple red line, never, ever to be crossed, for our collective sanity.

Antisemitism is not just terrible for the Jewish community, it is like a fever in an infected body; it points at a much wider problem. Antisemitism left unchallenged will create a much, much bigger problem in any society, that is what European history teaches us. So tackling antisemitism is an essential operation to save what we cherish in our society.

The fact that today, in Europe, antisemitism is still a reality, and that it is in fact on the rise – old antisemitism that we have known for centuries, and new antisemitism, that sometimes tries to hide itself behind anti-Zionism – is something we need to confront. I don't want European children to grow up with police at their school gates; it is a dark, dark stain on our collective conscience.

There is a book by one of my favourite German authors, Erich Maria Remarque. It's called 'Liebe deinen Nächsten' – I think the title in English is 'Flotsam'. He wrote it in 1939, and it tells the story of three Jewish exiles drifting across Europe. Their daily fears. The grim reality of exile. It's been with me every day these past few weeks. Now that we see the waves of refugees reaching our continent - and these refugees are actually going through exactly the same experience as the Jewish refugees were from Germany in the 1930s, sometimes deeply traumatised by what they experienced back home, like the characters in Remarque's books. Sometimes met with extreme forms of deep humanity by the people in the countries where they arrive, but also met with racism, violence, discrimination in the countries where they arrive.

So we never learn. We never learn. It is no different. The only thing that is different is that the refugees today come from somewhere else and have a different background.

In the past weeks, we have seen tremendous solidarity in some of our Member States. But we have also seen the dark side of society. We have seen the homes of asylum seekers set on fire. And we have heard political leaders declare that their countries would not accept refugees if they were Muslim.

Anti-Muslims incidents are multiplying across Europe. We're seeing a huge spike of attacks. Verbal insinuations, closed-mindedness, prejudice, discrimination.

The rise of islamophobia is one of the biggest challenges in Europe. It is a challenge to our vital values, to the core of who we are.

Never has our societies' capacity for openness, for tolerance, for inclusion been more tested than it is today.

Diversity is now in some parts of Europe seen as a threat. Diversity comes with challenges. But diversity is humanity's destiny. There is not going to be, even in the remotest places of this planet, a nation that will not see diversity in its future. That's where humanity is heading. And those politicians trying to sell to their electorates a society that is exclusively composed of people from one culture, are trying to portray a future based on a past that never existed, therefore that future will never be.

Europe will be diverse, like all other parts of the world will be diverse. The only question is, how do we deal with that diversity? And my answer to that is, by ensuring that our values determine how we deal with diversity and not giving up our values to refuse diversity. That will bring us down as a society.
If we don't get this right, I truly believe Europe will not remain the Europe we built. Europe will not remain a place of peace and freedom, for very long.

Ladies and gentlemen, we are all here to listen. I am here to listen. And I want to encourage you to share your experiences, but above all your ideas on very concrete ways in which we can fight back against hatred and intolerance in Europe. Think about the things we could do in education; create meeting places where people can come together. Look how we can tackle hate speech on the Internet and in other places.

Together, we will take stock of the main challenges faced by the Jewish and Muslim Communities in Europe today. And together, we will explore solutions, from the fight against hate crime and hate speech to the role of civil society, education and local authorities to policies promoting non-discrimination and inclusion.

This round table is not just symbolic. This table, around it, we have an enormous wealth of experience and insight which can help us find new ideas and solutions. Together with Commissioner Jourova, we would like each and every one of us to leave tomorrow with a to-do list of very concrete points, of very concrete commitments.

The importance we attach to fighting antisemitism and anti-Muslim hatred also means that we do not just want to listen to you and your concerns today.

It means that we remain there to listen and help also when this Colloquium is over. For this reason, Commissioner Jourova and I have decided that we will designate, within the Commission, two coordinators with specific responsibility for following issues relating to one, antisemitism and the other, Islamophobia. So one coordinator responsible to be your contact point on issues relating to antisemitism, another coordinator responsible as your point of contact for issues related to Islamophobia. And these two persons within our services will have direct access to me. So whatever you say to them lands on my desk immediately. I want to be in direct control of this I will be your envoy if you want to call it that. I will have two people in my services whose task it will be one, to make sure that the issue of antisemitism is her or his main activity, and the other, Islamophobia, and that they report to me directly so I know what I need to do when there is an issue at hand.

I look forward to your exchanges – and have no doubt that they will be lively. You know, what makes us Europeans is not just the capacity to express ourselves and to be understood, but more than that it is the capacity to listen to others even if we don't agree with what they have to say. Thank you very, very much for your attention."

That is the enemy line of perverted thinking. C.T.

The Charlemagne Prize
1950 - Present

The Charlemagne Prize (German: Karlspreis; full name originally Internationaler Karlspreis der Stadt Aachen, International Charlemagne Prize of the City of Aachen, since 1988 Internationaler Karlspreis zu Aachen, International Charlemagne Prize of Aachen) is one of the most prestigious European prizes. It has been awarded annually since 1950 by the German city of Aachen to people who contributed to the ideals upon which it has been founded. It commemorates Charlemagne, ruler of the Frankish Empire and founder of what became the Holy Roman Empire, who resided and is buried at Aachen. Traditionally the award is given to the recipient on Ascension Day in a ceremony in the town hall of Aachen. In April 2008, the organisers of the Charlemagne Prize and the European Parliament jointly created a new European Charlemagne Youth Prize, which recognises contributions by young people towards the process of European integration.

This is NOT to be confused, confusingly, with the European Prize Coudenhove-Kalergi which is in the gift of the European Society Coudenhove - Kalergi. Or the Sonning Prize which is awarded bienially by the University of Copenhagen of Denmark based on a list of candidates recommended by European Universities for their 'outstanding contributions to European culture' . The recipients are often the same but may be in different years.

Suffice to say that the authors of the European Union and their fellow lickspittles love to award each other prizes and medals for their contribution towards White Genocide and the furtherance of their New World Order.

Who Was Richard von Coudenhove - Kalergi?

Born: 16 November 1894, Tokyo, Empire of Japan.
Died: 27 July 1972 (aged 77), Schruns, Austria.
House: Coudenhove - Kalergi.
Father: Heinrich von Coudenhove - Kalergi.
Mother: Mitsuko Aoyama.

Coudenhove-Kalergi is proving to be a somewhat elusive character. There is a lot of information about him that is repetitive or contradictory. One of the problems is translation. Another has been deliberate the intention of his disciples and acolytes who shuffle the papers of the European Union to baffle the simple, straightforward, honest European with their usual Smoke and Mirrors routine.

Coudenhove Kalergi was not Jewish himself. On his fathers side he was of mixed European descent (Flemish. Czech. Hungarian. Greek) with lots of 'nobility'.
His mother was a Japanese from an aristocratic family.
He married the 13 year older Jewess Ida Roland [born Ida Klausner] a popular actress with whom he has two sons. Ida Roland died in 1951. In 1952 he married Alexandra Gräfin von Tiele, born Bally. In 1969 he married the Austrian Jewess Melanie Benatzky Hoffmann.
Count R. N. Courdenhove-Kalergi is seen by many as the father of the modern European Union. It was him who suggested Beethovens hymn as the EU's national anthem, and was very active in connection with the design of the EU logo which contains 12 stars which symbolize the 12 tribes of Israel. The logo was finalized by the Jew Paul M.G. Lévi. 2)
Otto von Habsburg was Coudenhove-Kalergi's successor as president of the Pan European Union. He is a honorary professor of the University of Jerusalem, and recipient of the 'International Humanitarian Award', of the 'Anti Defamation-League' (ADL) of the Jewish B'nai B'rith Masonery Lodge.
Coudenhove-Kalergi's father was a close friend of Theodor Herzl, the founder of Zionism.

Until recently the Coudenhove-Kalergi plan was known only to a small esoteric group of EU insiders. The document was published long ago, but it's circulation was largely restricted to the predominantly German speaking masonic organisations that wanted to pursue it. Even today it has not been fully translated into English, and there are only excerpts that are available to us, translated for the English speaking world. This is something that we at Western Spring are working to remedy and I would expect the full unexpurgated text to be available a little later this year. The problem with translation is that the document, Praktischer Idealismus is written in a form of German that is not used today, and incorporates terminology that is not only outmoded, but which requires a certain level of understanding of racial politics in Germany in the 1920's, in order to understand.
The current English excerpts that feature in the article we have republished give one a flavour of the full text, and are in themselves damning enough, but the full text, when it is released, will be political dynamite, so watch this space!

Praktischer Idealismus
Die freie Verschwörungsenzyklopädie

Forbidden in Germany &
Hidden by the European Movement

This book has probably not been printed in many copies, since it is very hard to get hold of a printed copy today.
In Germany the book is practically censored, even though it is not on the official list of books censored by the German government, it is not possible to buy it in any bookstores in Germany, neither new nor used.

When the publishing company 'Independent News' [Unabhängige Nachrichten] around 1990 published a summary of the book and contemplated printing it in it's entirety, the government initiated a police search of the premises, and the only copy of Praktischer Idealismus was confiscated.

The book is also not mentioned on the official Internet pages of the Pan European Movement, which is understandable because its content is directly in opposition to the movement's official program. The question is how this discrepancy originated: Was the Pan European Movement hijacked? Or was Praktischer Idealismus only meant for the few in the inner circles, and all the talk of Christian values, democracy etc. only empty rhetoric? Translated from Danish Wikipedia article

"We hear men speaking for us of new laws strong and sweet,
Yet is there no man speaketh as we speak in the street.
It may be we shall rise the last as Frenchmen rose the first,
Our wrath come after Russia's wrath and our wrath be the worst.
It may be we are meant to mark with our riot and our rest
God's scorn for all men governing. It may be beer is best.
But we are the people of England; and we have not spoken yet.
Smile at us, pay us, pass us.
But do no quite forget.

The Coudenhove - Kalergi Plan

The Genocide of the Peoples of Europe

This article is a translation of an Italian article, originally posted on Identità.

"Mass immigration is a phenomenon, the causes of which are still cleverly concealed by the system, and the multicultural propaganda is trying to falsely portray it as inevitable. With this article we intend to prove once and for all, that this is not a spontaneous phenomenon. What they want to present as an inevitable outcome of modern life, is actually a plan conceived around a table and prepared for decades, to completely destroy the face of the continent.

The Pan-Europe

Few people know that one of the main initiators of the process of European integration, was also the man who designed the genocide plan of the Peoples of Europe. It is a dark person, whose existence is unknown to the masses, but the elite considers him as the founder of the European Union. His name is Richard Coudenhove Kalergi. His father was an Austrian diplomat named Heinrich von Coudenhove-Kalergi (with connections to the Byzantine family of the Kallergis) and his mother the Japanese Mitsu Aoyama. Kalergi, thanks to his close contacts with all European aristocrats and politicians, due to the relationships of his nobleman-diplomat father, and by moving behind the scenes, away from the glare of publicity, he managed to attract the most important heads of state to his plan, making them supporters and collaborators for the "project of European integration". In 1922 he founded the "Pan-European" movement in Vienna, which aimed to create a New World Order, based on a federation of nations led by the United States. European integration would be the first step in creating a world government. Among the first supporters, including Czech politicians Tomáš Masaryk and Edvard Beneš and the banker Max Warburg, who invested the first 60,000 marks. The Austrian Chancellor Ignaz Seipel and the next president of Austria, Karl Renner, took the responsibility for leading the "Pan-European" movement. Later, French politicians, such as Léon Bloum, Aristide Briand, Alcide De Gasperi, etc will offer their help.

With the rise of Fascism in Europe, the project was abandoned and the "Pan-European" movement was forced to dissolve, but after the Second World War, Kalergi, thanks to frantic and tireless activity and the support of Winston Churchill, the Jewish Masonic Lodge B'nai B'rith and major newspapers like the New York Times, the plan manages to be accepted by the United States Government. The CIA later undertakes the completion of the project.

The essence of the Kalergi plan

In his book Praktischer Idealismus, Kalergi indicates that the residents of the future "United States of Europe" will not be the People of the Old Continent, but a kind of sub-humans, products of miscegenation. He clearly states that the peoples of Europe should interbreed with Asians and coloured races, thus creating a multinational flock with no quality and easily controlled by the ruling elite.

Kalergi proclaims the abolition of the right of self-determination and then the elimination of nations with the use of ethnic separatist movements and mass migration. In order for Europe to be controlled by an elite, he wants to turn people into one homogeneous mixed breed of Blacks, Whites and Asians.

Who is is this elite however? Kalergi is particularly illuminating on this. In his book Praktischer Idealismus (Practical Idealism), he wrote:

Left: The European Parliament "Louise Weiss" building in Strasbourg which was inaugurated in 1999. Right: Tower of Babel (oil on panel) by Bruegel, Pieter the Elder (c. 1525 - 69). Compare with the European Union poster on our front cover.

"The man of the future will be of mixed race. Today's races and classes will gradually disappear owing to the vanishing of space, time, and prejudice. The Eurasion - Negroid race of the future, similar in its appearance to the Ancient Egyptians, will replace the diversity of people with a diversity of individuals.

Instead of destroying European Jewry, Europe, against its own will, refined and educated this people into a future leader-nation through this artificial selection process. No wonder that this people, that escaped Ghetto-Prison, developed into a spiritual nobility of Europe. Therefore a gracious Providence provided Europe with a new race of nobility by the grace of Spirit. This happened at the moment when Europe's feudal aristocracy became dilapidated, and thanks to Jewish emancipation." [Due to the actions taken by the, Masonic, French Revolution].

Although no textbook mentions Kalergi, his ideas are the guiding principles of the European Union. The belief that the peoples of Europe should be mixed with Africans and Asians, to destroy our identity and create a single mestizo race, is the basis of all community policies that aim to protect minorities. Not for humanitarian reasons, but because of the directives issued by the ruthless Regime that machinates the greatest genocide in history. The Coudenhove-Kalergi European Prize is awarded every two years to Europeans who have excelled in promoting this criminal plan. Among those awarded with such a prize are Angela Merkel and Herman Van Rompuy.

The incitement to genocide, is also the basis of the constant appeals of the United Nations, that demands we accept millions of immigrants to help with the low birth rates of the EU. According to a report published on January 2000 in «Population division» Review of the United Nations in New York, under the title "Immigration replacement: A solution to declining and aging population," Europe will need by 2025 159,000,000 migrants. (Note: Think of the Rape Plan/Grooming Experiments.)

One could wonder how there can be such accuracy on the estimates of immigration, although it was not a premeditated plan. It is certain that the low birth rate could easily be reversed with appropriate measures to support families. It is just as clear that it is the contribution of foreign genes that do not protect our genetic heritage, but that it enables their disappearance. The sole purpose of these measures is to completely distort our people, to turn them into a group of people without national, historical and cultural cohesion. In short, the policies of the Kalergi plan was and still is, the basis of official government policies aimed at genocide of the Peoples of Europe, through mass immigration. G. Brock Chisholm, former director of the World Health Organization (OMS), proves that he has learned the lesson of Kalergi well when he says: "What people in all places have to do is to limit birthrates and promote mixed marriages (between different races), this aims to create a single race in a world which will be directed by a central authority. "

Conclusions

If we look around us, the Kalergi plan seems to be fully realized. We face Europe's fusion with the Third World. The plague of interracial intercourse produces each year thousands of young people of mixed race: "The children of Kalergi". Under the dual pressures of misinformation and humanitarian stupefaction, promoted by the MSM, the Europeans are being taught to renounce their origin, to renounce their national identity.

The servants of globalization are trying to convince us that to deny our identity, is a progressive and humanitarian act, that "racism" is wrong, because they want us all to be blind consumers. It is necessary, now more than ever, to counter the lies of the System, to awaken the revolutionary spirit of the Europeans. Every one must see this truth, that European Integration amounts to genocide. We have no other option, the alternative is national suicide.

Translator's note: Although the reasons due to which Kalergi made the choices he made are of no particular interest to us, we will try to answer a question that surely our readers have already asked: Why a European aristocrat with Flemish, Polish, Greek-Byzantine roots and even with some samurai blood in his veins (from his mother) was such body plans and organ in the hands of dark forces? The reasons, in our opinion, are multiple, idiosyncratic, psychological and ... women.

We therefore observe a personality with strong snobbish attitudes, arrogance, and, allow me the term, "degenerate elitism." Also, the fact that his mother was Asian, perhaps created internal conflicts and frustrations, something that can happen to people with such temperament. But the most decisive factor must have been the "proper teenager", which incidentally of course, was beside him, and became his first woman who was thirteen years older than him: The Jewess Ida Roland, who would later become a famous actress.

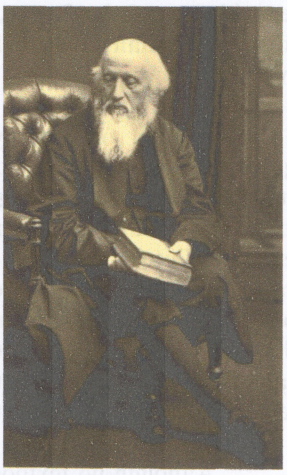
A Forgotten Great Briton: William Barnes



William Barnes (22 February 1801 - 7 October 1886) was an English writer, poet, Church of England priest, and philologist. He wrote over 800 poems, some in Dorset dialect, such as The Girt Woak Tree, and much other work, including a comprehensive English grammar quoting from more than 70 different languages.

Linguistic purism: Barnes had a strong interest in language; he was fluent in Greek, Latin and several modern European languages. He called for the purification of English by removal of Greek, Latin and foreign influences so that it might be better understood by those without a classical education. For example, the word "photograph" (from Greek light+writing) would become "sun-print" (from Saxon). Other terms include "wortlore" (botany), "welkinfire" (meteor) and "nipperlings" (forceps).

This 'Pure English' resembles the 'blue-eyed English' later adopted by the composer Percy Grainger, and sometimes the updates of known Old English words given by David Cowley in How We'd Talk if the English had WON in 1066.

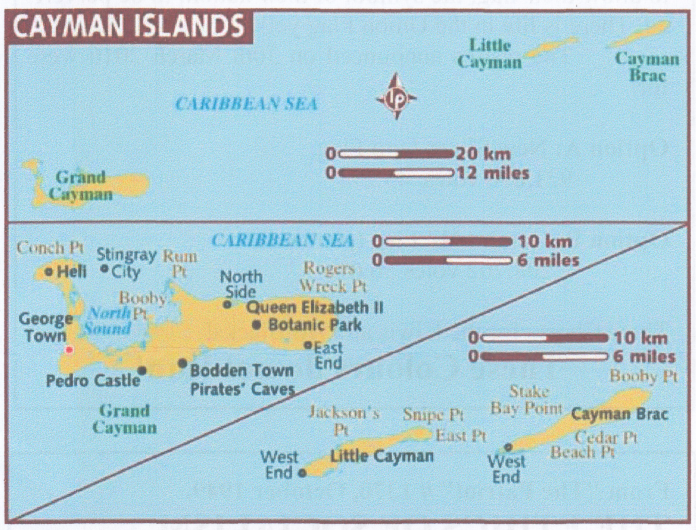
Cayman Islands

By Rob Black

candourwebmaster@yahoo.co.uk

The Cayman Islands are one of several British West Indies territories. They consist of three main islands, Grand Cayman, Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. The islands are peaks of a large underwater reef, and the territory is located approximately 150 miles south of Cuba.

Together the islands consist of just over 100 square miles of mainly low lying limestone and have a tropical marine climate, with a wet season of warm, rainy summers (May to October) and a dry season of relatively hot winters (November to April).



It was the most famous explorer of them all, Christopher Columbus, who first sighted the islands in 1503. He named them Las Tortugas after the many swimming turtles in the sea. The turtles became an important source of fresh meat for the European seamen and they were almost wiped out through overfishing. By 1530 the islands were known as the Caymanes after the Carib word caimán for the marine crocodile. There is no evidence of any human occupation prior to the European discovery.

The first recorded English visitor was Sir Francis Drake in 1586, and by 1658 the first settlers had arrived - a Welshman named Walters (or Watler) and his companion named Bawden (or Bodden), who first arrived after serving in Oliver Cromwell's army in Jamaica.

Under the terms of the Treaty of Madrid in 1670, Spain recognized English possessions in the Caribbean Sea: "all those lands, islands, colonies and places whatsoever situated in the West Indies." Spain confirmed England was to hold all territories in the Western Hemisphere that it had already settled. English shipping was allowed freedom of movement in the Caribbean and England agreed to suppress piracy in the area.

England gained control of the Cayman Islands as well as Jamaica under the treaty and settlers began to arrive from Jamaica. These early settlements were abandoned because of raids by both Spanish privateers and pirates. Piracy was endemic to the region and the Caymans were used by pirates for bases.

Permanent settlement began in the 1730's. The Cayman Islands acquired their population from a variety of sources: pirates, refugees from the Spanish Inquisition, shipwrecked sailors, and slaves. Not surprisingly, most of the islanders lived off the sea by fishing and ship building.

At first the islands were regarded as dependencies of Jamaica but there was considerable self government from the beginning. A legislative assembly was elected by the Cayman settlers in 1831 and slaves were freed here in 1833 as in the rest of the Empire in accordance with the Emancipation Act. In 1898 the Governor of Jamaica began appointing a Commissioner for the Islands, prior to this the Chief Magistrate was the administrating official for the dependency, who was appointed by the Jamaican governor.

During World War One, many Cayman Islands men volunteered for active service and mostly served in the newly formed British West Indies Regiment. In total 15,600 men served in the regiment. Initially used in support roles, the regiment increasingly saw combat service as the war continued. By the end of the First World War, 185 men from the BWIR had been killed in action and 1,071 had died of sickness. Other islanders served in the regular West India Regiment.

By the outbreak of World War 2 in 1939, both regiments had been disbanded and neither was reformed. During 1939-45, 16,000 West Indians volunteered for active service and Cayman Islanders served alongside the other West Indians in the Merchant Navy, while others joined the Royal Air Force in a variety of roles. Thousands travelled to Britain to join the Army and encountered a reluctance to accept them. Eventually a Caribbean Regiment was formed, but it saw little front line service.

After the war, the infamous British "scuttle from Empire" began. The various West Indian Islands were encouraged to federate into a single nation. Forced through with a complete lack of public support, the Federation had a very short lifespan, and it collapsed in 1962.

Jamaica became an independent state in August 1962, and its Cayman Islands dependency, feeling it had little in common with Jamaica 300 miles away, opted to stay within what remained of the Empire as a direct dependency of the British Crown.

This proved a very wise step. As Jamaica stagnated and declined, the Cayman Islands underwent the most extraordinary and unlikely boom. The islands had long been an imperial backwater, plagued by mosquitoes and possessing poor soil. However, historically it had been a tax-exempt destination and had never levied income or capital gains tax on its inhabitants.

A Jamaican civil servant of Indian stock, Mr V.G. Johnstone, arrived on the Caymans and had the brainwave idea to exploit the tax-free status. He was able to persuade the local administrators and the British Foreign Office to adopt his plan. Banks at first were more difficult to persuade but the growing instability in the region saw banks and financial institutions flock to the Caymans, which is now one of the world's largest financial centres and a well-known tax haven, the British overseas territory has more registered businesses than it has people!

Today the 56,000 inhabitants have the highest standard of living in the Caribbean. According to the CIA World Factbook, the Cayman Islands GDP per capita is the 14th highest in the world.

Banking now has a poor reputation and the Cayman Islands have come under some criticism due to the use of their territory for narcotics trafficking and money laundering. Unlike some other islands, the corruption issue seems to have been addressed successfully by limiting banking secrecy, introducing requirements for customer identification and record keeping, and requiring banks to co-operate with foreign investigators.

The Caymans are largely self-governing. A 20-seat Legislative Assembly is elected by the people every four years to handle domestic affairs. Of the elected Members of the Legislative Assembly, seven are chosen to serve as government ministers in a Cabinet headed by the Governor. The Premier is appointed by the Governor, while the Governor is appointed by the Queen, and can exercise complete legislative and executive authority if he wishes through blanket powers reserved to him in the island constitution.

On the surface it appears that the Cayman Islands are a very successful and loyal British Overseas Territory. Indeed the islands raised large sums of money to assist with the Falklands War in 1982 through a "Mother needs your help" campaign. However, American influence grows and tensions are beginning to exist between the wealthy expat community and the locals. It may also be that the Islanders have sold their souls to Finance in exchange for a higher standard of living.

The flag of the Cayman Islands

The Cayman Islands coat of arms consists of a shield, a crested helm and a motto. The three green stars in the crest represent each of the Cayman Islands. The stars rest on blue and white wavy stripes; which represent the sea. In the top third of the shield, against a red background, sits a gold lion; which represents Great Britain. There is a green turtle on a coil of rope above the crest and behind the turtle is a gold pineapple. The turtle symbolizes the nation's seafaring history and the pineapple symbolizes the Cayman's ties with Jamaica. The country's motto, "He hath founded it upon the seas", is situated beneath the crest. This motto was taken from Psalms 24 and acknowledges Cayman Island's Christian heritage.

THE ETHICS OF SOCIALISM

THAT SOCIALISTS SHOULD CYNICALLY IGNORE THE PUBLIC INTEREST, WHICH THEY PROFESS TO REGARD AS THEIR PECULIAR CARE, IS ULTIMATELY DUE TO THE FACT THAT THE REAL ETHICS OF SOCIALISM ARE THE ETHICS OF WAR. WHAT THE SOCIALISTS WANT IS NOT PROGRESS IN THE WORLD AS WE KNOW IT, BUT DESTRUCTION OF THAT WORLD AS A PRELUDE TO THE CREATION OF A NEW WORLD OF THEIR OWN IMAGINING. IN ORDER TO WIN THAT END THEY HAVE TO SEEK THE SUPPORT OF EVERY FORCE THAT MAKES FOR DISORDER, AND TO APPEAL TO EVERY MOTIVE THAT STIMULATES CLASS HATRED. THEIR ETHICAL OUTLOOK IS THE DIRECT REVERSE OF THAT WHICH HAS INSPIRED ALL THE GREAT RELIGIONS OF THE WORLD. INSTEAD OF SEEKING TO ATTAIN PEACE UPON EARTH AND GOODWILL AMONG MEN, THEY HAVE CHOSEN FOR THEIR GOAL UNIVERSAL WARFARE, AND THEY DELIBERATELY MAKE THEIR APPEAL TO THE PASSIONS OF ENVY, HATRED AND MALICE.

ANOTHER WHITEHALL (MoD) FARCE

The continuing forced DIVERSIFICATION of the British Armed Forces, with the aim of reducing them to be fit only for amalgamation into a European Union Armed Forces, has not only been to feminize but dilute the British racial element.

This has produced several interesting problems.

The Ministry of Total Incompetence, also laughingly referred to as the Ministry of Defence (MoD), have being paying out massive sums for cold related injuries, on the QT, to non-European servicemen and women for at least a decade.

This came to light in the third week of April when the media reported that Abdoulie Bojang, originally from Gambia but now resident in Warwickshire, who apparently graced the British Army for a while during which time he was sent on a training exercise to the beautiful Rockie Mountains in Canada, where he caught frostbite for which he is now claiming £200,000 compensation.

The reason.

"The MoD 'failed to take into account his ethnicity'".

Mr. Bojang's barrister, Chrristopher Barnes, said the MoD had been aware of the increased risk of cold injuries to servicemen of 'black African ethnicity' since 1984.

Simon Harrington, a partner for law firm Irwin Mitchell, told The Sunday Times 17 April, he had acted for about 450 Commonwealth soldiers who had suffered cold injuries in the past decade.

Ahmed Al-Nahhas, of legal firm Bolt Burdon Kemp, said the problem was 'prolific', and soldiers of black Caribbean and black ethnic origins were more 'prediposed' to the injuries.

A study looked at blood samples from soldiers who suffered cold injuries during the Falklands War (1982), including four black paratroopers. It found a 2.8 to sixfold increased likelihood of developing symptoms'.

Further studies have indicated that black soldiers are 30 times more likely to contract a cold injury than white soldiers.

As a result of these reports a Candour subscriber and former British Army Officer told your Editor;

"Officers and NCOs are always told to pay attention to their non-white troops as they feel the cold and suffer from it more. Consequently they are issued with more kit, more hot food, more hot drinks and spend more time inside. Which means that our white soldiers get less....

BASICALLY IN COLD CLIMATES WHITE SOLDIERS GET MORE COLD DUTY AS NON-WHITES CAN'T COPE. LIKEWISE IN ALL WEATHERS FEMALE SOLDIERS CARRY LESS WEIGHT.

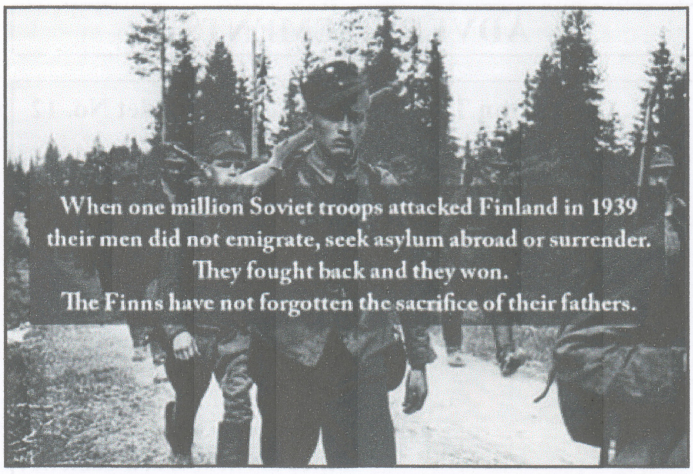
EQUALITY MEANS WHITE MALES HAVE TO BEAR A HEAVIER LOAD".

Perhaps your Editor should claim compensation for the severe sunstroke he suffered in Sierra Leone some thirty years ago when in the Royal Navy. My severe whiteness obviously being a hindrance in warmer climes.

I do have, however, my Royal Navy Blue Nose Certificate for service in the Arctic Circle and my Crossing the Line Passport bestowed upon me by King Neptune for passing the Equator for the first time back in '79.

Perhaps every British Serviceman, old and new, should claim 'Compo' for ever being too hot, sweaty, cold, wet or even a bit chilly.

Truly all we need is the late Brian Rix to play the part of a General with his trousers around his ankles....



When one million Soviet troops attacked Finland in 1939 their men did not emigrate, seek asylum abroad or surrender.
They fought back and they won.

Profanity reveals soul without concern for its welfare

(Letter from Candour subscriber printed in County Times. A Mid-Wales newspaper. 29 Jan 2016)

"Bill Johnson has the effrontery to write about austerity and then blame religion for the current war in the Middle East and say that religion is all Monty Pythonism.

Such profanity evidences a soul that has no concern for its eternal welfare.

I will deal with his two points.

Firstly: Assad's government is secular so Mr Johnson must agree that Assad is not responsible according to his own accusation.

Our current intervention is also a violation of a sovereign country as on previous occasions.

Secondly: Austerity; Mr johnson writes a letter about austerity making petty points about unfair salary increases and gets 'letter of the week' without pointing out the problem or the solution. Presumably he cannot do so as he is a Guardian reader.

His writing about austerity and religion in the same letter is disingenuous because he is ignorant of the fact that austerity is caused by usury which Christianity considers a mortal sin (Islam also forbids it).

Austerity is caused by the fact that the bankers have usurped the credit creating power of the state and substituted a facsimile of money-as-debt which they create out of thin air and then charge us interest on top of it! This is usury.

Fears are growing of an economic collapse as nations continue to amass unprecedented levels of debt. America is a case in point with debt of $18 trillion in Federal debt, $60 trillion in total debt, and $116 trillion in unfunded liabilities, according to the US National Debt Clock.

Mortgages are another example. How much homelessness would there be if a buyer was only required to buy their home once and not three times over?

'The upright man is law-abiding and honest... He never charges usury on loans, takes no interest, abstains from evil... Saith the Lord God.' Ezekiel 18: 5, 8-9.

'USURA RADIX OMNIA MALORUM' (Usury is the root of all evil).

Edward the Confessor, King of England (c. 1003-1066, builder of Westminster Abbey, Canonised in 1161.

His feast day is October 13 according to the traditional Roman Catholic calendar.

According to Thorold Rogers, professor of political economy at Oxford University, in the middle of the 19th century.

'At the time (the Middle Ages) a labourer could provide all the necessities for his family for a year by working 14 weeks.'

It was a time when there were dozens of holidays a year in honour of God or a saint or a victory. When property owners owned their property in allodial title - not paying rent in the form of property taxes. When massive cathedrals were built, edifices of splendour and built with voluntary subscription without debt, mortgages or usury.

This was a time when Englishmen called their country 'Merry England'

Such a Christian society is derided by Mr Johnson as backward and a society without usury an impossibility. With the likes of Mr Johnson and our current disingenuous politicians such is the case.

BBC Charter Review = More Nonsense

Some of us have already dumped our televisions. I urge you again to do the same. Announced on Friday the 13 of May (!) in the odious Daily Mail it was announced that the 'British' Government on the 12th had backed the BBC's diversity strategy (Diversity = White Genocide) which includes targets for on-screen ethnic minority, gay (i.e. homosexual. Another perversion of the English language by perverts) and disabled actors.

Culture Secretary John Whittingdale, may the saints preserve us, of the Conservative government has approved the continued assault on British values by approving the new BBC targets that mean 15% of lead roles on television and radio will go to minority actors by 2020.

After six issues last year I'm afraid we have had a slow start to 2016. Various computer problems and some other irritations and distractions. I know you will bear with us and I appreciate your patience.

We have a great deal to get on with. This year is the 100th anniversary of the birth of Rosine Maria de Bounevialle. A book of Rosine's writings, A-Z of Politics is in the pipeline and I have a very difficult Foreword to write. A mini-biography in fact when what Rosine really deserves is so much more. Very few Britons have had the gigantic generosity of spirit or the physical courage of that lady.
